

FoodTracker App

Author: Quinn Ryan

Problem Statement

Users often are faced with the problem of an overcrowded fridge, not knowing what is new old or expired. One of the worst things is unknowingly opening a spoiled carton of milk and pouring it onto a bowl of cereal, or worse, straight up drinking it. Our app looks to solve this problem, while also offering multiple other helpful services that cater to each individual user's needs.

Who is experiencing the problem?

Anyone who owns or uses a fridge and eats food.

What is the Problem?

Nobody knows for sure when their food is spoiled or not, especially when a fridge becomes cluttered.

Where does the problem present itself?

When a user is making a meal and finds they don't have the right ingredients due to key items being expired.

Why does it matter?

People need a way to protect themselves from food poisoning, as well as having an easier automated way of getting groceries and making foods they like.